He became Bishop of York covering the whole of Northumbria and built magnificent stone churches at Ripon and Hexham. He acquired vast landholdings and established several monasteries and converted Sussex, the last vestige of paganism, to Christianity. Although a confidant of kings and queens he made many powerful enemies and was twice banished from Northumbria. His life was threatened many times and he was imprisoned in Northumbria by the king. Following his death in 709, he was venerated as a saint.

Martin Luther

Martin was an Augustinian canon, a theologian and official preacher to the parish church at Wittenberg. In protest against the sale of indulgencies by Friar Tetzel in 1517, he nailed his 95 theses to the door of the church. This started a movement which took him and much of northern Europe outside the jurisdiction of the Catholic Church. He was excommunicated and only escaped imprisonment with the aid of some German princes. The new Protestant theology which developed went far beyond his proposals for reform.
