

As a child, what did you love to do?

What do you love to do now?

During school group projects, what job did you volunteer for?

What do you think about repeatedly, which captures your imagination?

What aspects of your current work do you love, which do you dislike?

If time, money, education and any other obstacle were not an issue, what would you choose to do?

What kinds of projects and jobs at home or at work do you get excited about? What kinds do you dread?

What were you doing the last time you totally lost track of time?

Have you ever talked to a friend about a topic, a dream or an aspiration, and everything just seemed to click inside you?

What inspires you and makes you feel alive?

What things do you see other people doing that you wish you were doing?

What subject do you enjoy talking about for hours?

What issues get you really fired up?

What fills your thoughts in the quiet moments in your life?

What sort of people do you love being connected with?

What dream has nagged at you for as long as you can remember, the thing that always pops into your mind no matter how many times you dismiss it?
